

DID YOU KNOW A $100 BILL HAS A LONGER LIFESPAN THAN A $1 BILL?

According to the Federal Reserve, the lifespan of paper money varies by denomination and depends on a number of factors, including how it is used by the public. For example, larger denominations such as $100 bills are often used as a store of value, which means they pass between users less frequently than lower denominations such as $5 bills, which are more often used for transactions.

Denomination Estimated Lifespan

$1	6.6 years	$20	7.8 years
$5	4.7 years	$50	12.2 years
$10	5.3 years	$100	22.9 years
